Fred Van Lente : Big Trouble in Little China Vol. 5 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Big Trouble in Little China Vol. 5:

By Just A Concerned Citizen Even with the absence of Mr. Carpenter, I felt this was a terrific read and brought things back on track after the somewhat disappointing previous volume. As always, looking forward to finding out what happens next with this story arc! 0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. More Trouble in Modern China By A. KAPLAN Fred Van Lente returns as writer on this volume of Big Trouble in Little China, joined this time by artist Dan McDaid. As with previous volumes of this series, this really captures the humor and over-the-top nature of the movie, although the emphasis is stronger on the humor than on the otherwise straightforward martial arts action. In many ways, like the movie, Jack Burton is treated almost as a sidekick, remaining a focus of the story while the rest of the cast are the prime players in terms of action and getting things done. The art, by McDaid, has a very kinetic feel to it, and that energy certainly feels at home in this series. Another fun installment, although, sadly, this is the penultimate volume in this series.

Jacks are wild! Jack Burton is a man out of time but with the best intentions. When he finds himself in China for the poker tournament of a lifetime, the reluctant hero must play against the world's top sorcerers in order to secure the freedom of his closest friends. Writer Fred Van Lente (Incredible Hercules, Archer Armstrong) and artist Dan McDaid (Doctor Who) confront old adversaries and new in this latest mad cap adventure in the life of Jack Burton.
