One Master Pays Tribute to Another By Coach of Alva A renowned comic book author and illustrator collects his adaptations of fifteen Poe tales and poems. He usually sticks to the plot of the originals. I wish hed used more quotes from them. He is a good writer but of course it is his art, drawing and coloring, that is unforgettable. The background is traditional Gothic. The characters are his very much his own, creatures that resemble either human/rodent hybrids or tall people with heads shaped like Easter Island statues or Frankenstein's monster after a visit to a stylist, with expressions full of fear and dread and pain and wrath. He has a recurring character, Mag the Hag, who introduces, comments on, and ends the tales with a dose of modern sensibility to otherwise nineteenth century material. A great example of comic book horror art. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By MARION A. LESAK the art is fantastic 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Poe by Corben By Bradley Myers I've always been a big fan of Richard Corben. His style art seems suited perfectly for these Poe adaptations. Now I couldn't imagine any other artist adapt a Poe story, for that matter an H.P. Lovecraft story either.

A collection of Edgar Allan Poe's classics adapted by master horror comics artist and Eisner Hall of Fame inductee, Richard Corben.
