I want to slap her.By Casey BrooksThe relationship between husband and wife, Crown Prince Shin low-born Chae-Kyung, is slowly morphing more into an actually relationship. It's the beginning of a friendship! [I know! You didn't see it coming either! 6.6]We see more of the history surrounding the lives of the previous generation; Shin's mother father, as well as Yul's mother and father. We learn a little more about Korean [ancient-royal] Culture..... blah blah blah.This manhwa is humorous. There's the school festival, a puppet show, injuries, hurt egos, Yul looking all girly [which is kind of pretty actually], a sudden new alliance, a public 'prank' on a member of the young royal generation, a new edition to the family [and no, its not a wife for Yul], some Chae-Kyung 'back-love', the crown-prince is denied [not like you might think], jealousy between family and a possible kiss!?Shin is allowed to trade places with England's Prince William [who I might add, in the next manhwa 'Goong: the royal palace 5' would never act like that...but his scenes are still awkward and funny because Chae-Kyung doesn't understand English, yet she totally gets the total weirdness about William's desire-to-be-with-a-certain-flirtatious-servant].0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. GoodBy Amanda MortInteresting story

After the king grants his late brother a posthumous coronation, the status quo shifts dramatically as his widow, Yul's mother, gains power in the palace. And she definitely has it out for Shin and Chae-Kyung! When the newlyweds are invited to go abroad, it seems like they might be on the road to romance...but with Yul's mammy dearest determined to make the couple miserable, will they even get off the ground?

About the AuthorSo Hee Park is the manhwa artist of the long-running series Goong, which has been adapted into an award-winning and hugely popular Korean drama series of the same name. She graduated with a major in manhwa from Gongjoo Cultural University in Korea. In 2000, she was awarded Seoul Media's silver medal for Best New Manhwa Creator.
