An alien like creature called the Spread has wrecked havoc across the world. The artwork is amazing but in this issue I think the traditional artist took a leave and will be back. With that said while the artwork was nice the way panels were drawn made it confusing contrasted with the dialogue. Also some of the scenes had graphic nudity which was not necessary. For example there was a wilderness man who encounters a Spread entity in the woods and they have a fight. The Spread overpowers the man and the only way to save himself is to jump in his camp fire and burn the alien. After that the artist shows the man in a couple of panels with his "junk" prominently displayed. Did not need to see that....you could have conveyed he was nude in a number of ways. I will read the next volume though...like I said interesting plot and the artwork is compelling.

No and company have found their way to Sanctuary, the last piece of civilization in the Quarantine Zone. But they're going to find that even here, there's no place the Spread hasn't touched as they find new enemies and old allies. The science fiction horror epic by JUSTIN JORDAN and KYLE STRAHM FELIPE SOBREIRO continues here.
